Animus

1968-1969

Edmonton, Alberta

Editorial

Animus is a Latin word meaning the center of thought, learning, intellect, spirit, courage and pride. The life force of a person is his animus. Individuals enthusiastically giving their energy and ideas to the school have created Scona's unique and envied spirit. Through involvements in school activities and studies, and relationships with fellow students and teachers, our interests have been broadened and our emotions deepened. Scona's animus is changing slightly with the different students, extends into the future. Where is your animus leading you?

—Jean Frost

Dedication

This, the 1968-1969 edition of Animus is dedicated to all the Scona students who willingly and enthusiastically participate in the activities which has given Scona a tradition to uphold. These students represent the heart, soul and spirit of Scona. They represent Animus.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

"Graduation! " It sounds so unbelievable, but, oh! so grand. This is the occasion we have all greatly anticipated, but now we have mixed emotions. For we realize that graduation is not the end but the start of our new careers.

The publication of Animus, our yearbook, brings to an end, not just one year of happiness, but to me — three joyous years of excitement and memories. I have gained here, in an association with a wonderful group of teachers and a very warm-hearted student body, the greatest pleasures and memories of my life.

I deeply regret seeing us part, but I do wish the best of luck to each and everyone of you. For it was you who made these past years a memento I shall cherish and remember for the rest of my life.

Muk Luk

Muk Luk week commenced with the crowning of Miss Scona. Megan Hodge was chosen queen with Anne Elofson and Jean Frost as princesses. Frances Goble sported the most authentic costume, Friday, winning a free ticket to the Muk Luk dinner. After the feast our powerful Junior Lords mashed Jasper Place. A soc hop followed the games.

NOVEMBER NIGHT

Shades
Shells of things
Immobile time
Directionless road
Dimensionless thought.

The sky in bright blue mimicry of summer taunts and jeers.
The sun, with sadistic smile, shrouds its shine in commitments.

The trees naked mobs their leaves where keen sweet zepthers memories enscribed are doomed
and rotting brown in dank ditches.

No poignant haze of autumn.
No leaves radiant with the warmth of their pasts.
Once delicious desires are nauseating in the waning aura of a sickly sun.
Once resilient earth is caked and cracked insanely.
its fulfillment long harvested.

Hopes have migrated.

Dead grass sighing
Love's dreams dying

The corpse awaits a final blanket to cover its fetid face.

who are you now, Woodby Indy?
who are you now,

are you still the free and easy girl i left naked amid the daisies – pink with passion and smothered in dew?

are you still that sweet start, Calliope, tendering fools
a grasp of insight, the aegis of youth and roller-coaster Coney Island minds?

are you still ephemeral as gossamer – so quixotic or eugenic that the faintest auguries of need stir you to polyorgasms of giving?

are you still one sunny fraulein, with a self-contemplating navel whose name is Phobophobia Fred and who leads wherever he's led?

are you still a girl so much a kaleidoscope your diaphanous eyes when scrutinized expose a fragmented scintillating psyche?

are you still the WASPish Virgin of the Fertile Mind seducing tent-fulls of Young Turks, yet emerging, caputular maidenhead intact?

are you still a maiden, that serious scaramouche – do your lovers bring you daisies and leave with pieces of your heart?
who are you now, Woodby Indy?
who are you now?

UP WITH APATHY!

The Editor,
The Apathy Analgesic:

First, I would like to apologize for writing this letter. Ordinarily, there would have been no need for such a rash move in this best of all possible schools, but the present situation is such that it is imperative that I break the vow each of us takes when he enters Apathy Composite High School – “Anonymity, Gullibility, Apathy” – and speak out against certain elements that are conspiring to corrupt our students and ruin our school's reputation.

To be specific, certain people attending Apathy (I hesitate to call them students) have recently been showing – much as I hate to say it – life! Just yesterday, as I was being wheeled down the corridor to my Math class by my automation, John, I met one of the culprits. He had actually gotten out of his wheelchair and was walking, albeit unsteadily, toward me! Why, he even attempted (if you can imagine this) to speak with me! Of course, I immediately had John pick him up and carry him to the office, where he was suitably disciplined, but can you imagine what would have happened if he had met and tried to communicate with one of our scatterbrained Grade 10's? And succeeded? Why, in no time at all – you know how these things spread – students would be getting out of their wheelchairs, talking, laughing, even (if you can imagine this) showing . . . “school spirit”!

This must not be allowed to happen! We cannot let years of hallowed tradition go to waste! A.C.H.U.S. has a reputation that reaches back to the “Superfluous Sixties” for producing some of the dullest, most narrow-minded high school graduates in Canada. Its alumni include: three Members of Parliament (none of whom, I am proud to say, has need of any further education after leaving Apathy – upon graduation they were elected into Parliament, where they fitted so perfectly into the backbenches that nothing has been heard or seen of them since); innumerable high school teachers and principals (some of whom now teach at Apathy, magnanimously passing on their acquired obtuseness to grateful students); and at least one senator. So I say, what was good enough for our forefathers is good enough for us!

There is only one way to defeat these young anarchists, who would take away our comfortable wheelchairs and make us walk! Who would discard our beloved textbooks and tests and have us experience life! Who would do away with regimentation, our only means of maintaining control, and have us practice (if you can imagine this) self-reliance!

We must, all of us, regardless of danger to our personal safety or peace of mind, regardless of whether or not we disrupt the school . . . we must all sit down immediately and write to the principal, telling him of this outrage and demanding it be stopped at once! The Living Dead shall triumph again! Up With Apathy!

Once again, I apologize for writing this letter, and for disturbing the reader's usual torpor. The space might have been more profitably used to display a picture of our revered namesake (Lord Apathy), to remind the reader to live up to our school motto – Ut Qui Dormit (As One Who Sleeps), or to reprint once again in the Apathy Analgesic that excellent article (with three-color charts and arrows), WHY APATHY HIGH IS THE BEST POSSIBLE SCHOOL IN THIS BEST OF ALL POSSIBLE WORLDS.

Yours for a more Apathetic school,

HAIRY TOM DICK

His hair, dull and dank, hung in loose tendrils about his forehead. It rubbed the oily collar of his khaki jacket spasmodically as he walked. Strong and finely chiselled, his brow and cheekbones and jaw were those of some young Apollo, but the frameless glasses that clung to his narrow nose gave him a confusingly grandmother-like air. As if he realized this, the corners of his wide, thin-lipped mouth were wryly drawn back behind his drooping mustache. Enviably long and dark, his lashes batted periodically against the smudged lenses of his spectacles. His eyes were grey, like a watercolor sky, or a mist-shrouded field, or tears in the night, and they gazed at the world with bewilderment and concern.

As if with concentrated effort, he walked, placing one sandalled foot in the centre of each sidewalk square. His hands, punched heavily in his pockets, drew his shoulders forward in a slouch. His baggy jeans slapped rhythmically together as he stepped, and his left toes protruded from a hole in his grubby green socks. He was filthy and he knew it, but he had not slept under a roof for two weeks. When she saw him coming, a matron wildly turned the corner and fumed as she trudged two extra blocks in her flight. He would have been sad had he known.

He did not believe in running away from anything. When he left home for the slums and alleys and ghettos, he knew it would be for longer than a summer's passing. While the others had sought escape and drugs and free love, he had found enlightenment and Middle-earth and free thought. What he sought now was not alienation, but reconcilliation.

That hazy afternoon, the street was dotted with others "like" him, but they, in their pseudo-nonconformity, cried out "Look at us! How different we are!" They scarred his purpose like identical pimples, and he pitied them. He walked among them now, but he was alone.

IN MEMORIUM

*In fond memory, of Gerry Smith, a Scona student, who passed away
February 7, 1969, at the age 16.*

LOVE

*A word, not of any size
But only large, so that one does not notice size;
A way, that man can live in balance
For his confidence cannot be denied;
A greeting, where one does not notice forwardness;
A time, when one is not great by another's failures;
A place, where one is alone in himself
Yet together in his pride.
For this is not in any book
Or any way confined
To anyone or anyplace
Or any shallow mind.
This love is for life
And life for love;
Yet it is poorly found
That man will tend to material things
For pleasure by the pound.
But I have found
(And so will you)
The pleasure in the life-
For life is love,
And love is life,
And then it's surely found.*

Night's Dream

On February 21 and 22 the annual school year play was performed. Indeed, it was a "school" play with contributions not only from the drama classes but also from the Fab. and Dress, the Materials, the Music, the Art, and many other classes. The play was the Shakespearean comedy "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The response was marvelous with large audiences attending each performance. It was judged one of the best productions in many years.

A day long Teach-In was held at Scona on Sunday, March 23, 1969. The morning panel on sex consisted of Rev. Terry Anderson; Miss Danny Rousseau, a 1st year student at U. of A.; Dr. Jean Nelson; and Mr. Royal from the Family Service Association.

The afternoon discussion on drugs had a panel consisting of Phil Fraser from the Alcoholism Foundation, lawyer Bob Gillespie, Al Perry, Guidance Counsellor; Rev. Bob Rigley and Elaine Riggs, a school psychologist.

The SCONA SPIRIT

Joyce Cutler

Michelle Quesnel

Joyce Cutler became the SPIRIT'S assistant editor in her first year at Scona. Another hard-working member of the staff, Joyce's biggest effort was editing the Christmas issue. A total of ten pages, this issue involved an estimated 43 hours of work.

'Quesnel', as she is known around the newspaper office, was one of the most active reporters on the staff. A glance at any issue this year and one will spot at least one 'by Michelle Quesnel', if not two or three. Michelle's reporting covered nearly all aspects of student life at Scona, our interests and activities. From the crowning of Miss Scona to interviews with prominent Edmontonians, Michelle was present with her pad and pencil.

In its second year under a new name, the SCONA SPIRIT continued to grow to fulfil the role of being the voice of the school.

Under the editorship of Don Graham, new standards for neatness and consistency of format were set for the paper this year, and the productions, when viewed as a whole, are certainly the best high school newspapers produced without a complete print shop in the province, if not Western Canada.

The rather small staff this year must be heartily commended for their yeomen service in meeting deadlines (?) and getting out papers on short notice.

Especially notable this year has been the increased quality in pictures, with some of the former "blobs" even recognizable as people.

Another step forward in the history of our paper was the acquisition of an office, a home, a place of security. Despite a level of lighting unheard of in a place of habitation since Neanderthal days, room 215 has been a good centre of operations for the SPIRIT; and the stygian darkness is an excuse for the multi typing errors.

The SPIRIT is also becoming affluent in that some equipment has actually been made or bought. We even have a typewriter to call our own; files and pigeon holes (sans pigeons) have appeared.

But a newspaper is really people: people who are willing to put in that extra time to finish make-up, people who like to see their work in print and who are willing to improve. The SCONA SPIRIT is a product of such people, and it has been a good year.

Class History of '69

As the graduating class of 1969 we collect our memories of our three years of high school. Some may be sad memories, like a few of those exams we have slaved through, but for the most part, I think we will recall our years at Strathcona Composite as some of the happier ones.

We entered Scona in a whirlwind of amazement. We were all thoroughly convinced we could never make it from Room 230 to the gym in three minutes. However, at the mercy of the seniors we struggled through a week of torture which ended in our first high school social event, the Frosh Dance. Our Frosh Year proved to be a memorable one as it was Canada's Centennial. The Centennial Blast Off, I'm sure is still recorded in our minds. Our Senior Lords proved their lordly talent as they were co-winners in the Victoria Challenge Cup. We even got a hard-covered Tri-Colour in '67. As spring fever came, we celebrated at an outdoor sock hop, which proved a great success. Although the year was mostly fun some of us did work as twenty-one of our class received Academic Awards.

Cathie Smith
Class Historian

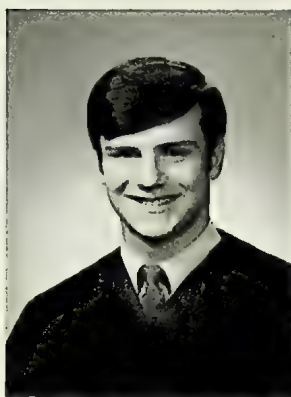

During our second term at Scona, we began to realize the benefits of school life. Gaylord's Feast produced a great many hot dog and football fans, while the houseleague created new rivalries at hool-a-hoop and buck-buck contests. Although the basketball team did not do so well, the swim team won the city championship, thus keeping our name on the top. Toward the end of our eleventh year, Governor-General Michener, after giving us a one-and-half-day holiday, was welcomed in hospitable Strathcona fashion.

This last year has been one of the best, we have been the leaders. We finally got revenge for our Frosh Year as we helped WELCOME the new grade tens to Scona. Our Hillbilly Hop offered the boys an UNUSUAL free night out. We saw a great Muk Luk weekend in a combination Feast – Basketball game and dance. Our class further proved its capabilities in the field of dramatics when an excellent performance of "Midsummer Night's Dream" was presented.

Now just as we are beginning to learn the "ropes" at Scona, it comes to an end. Those forbidding departmentals are now only a month away. Although we have completed our years at Scona, the friendships made and experiences gained will not be forgotten. Thank you.

VALEDICTORY

With graduation comes a climax and an end to twelve important years in our lives. Our life at Strathcona, in particular, has rewarded us with new and lasting ideals, activities, and friendships. Yet, at the same time, it has frustrated and even frightened us as we look into the uncertainty of the future where the problems we have faced only in theory must now be met in reality. Reassuring to each of us, however, is the wealth of knowledge and insight into the ideals and solutions of the past which we have gained. We have been encouraged by the belief that the accomplishments of past graduates can not only be realized in ourselves but can be surpassed.

In the hope we would be adequately equipped to attain our individual goals, we have been exposed to varied and valuable learning situations throughout our years at Strathcona. But in addition to this—these same experiences have aided us in our more co-operative search for solutions to the problems of our swiftly changing society.

It is indeed youth's place to challenge, rather than to accept the old, and through this challenge to build on the foundation of existing values rather than to set out to destroy them. Even in today's society, where youth particularly seeks a rapid and thorough change, there must be a better way than destruction.

It is not only our responsibility but our right, both as individuals and members of a community, to shape our destiny so that we establish a society in which each individual not only EXISTS but really LIVES.
